“As a parent, it’s my responsibility to make sure my kids are playing games I approve of.”

“My kids love to play video games, but they’re also very young, which makes it necessary for my husband and me to approve the games they play. But as my kids grow older, it will still be my responsibility to stay involved in helping them choose appropriate games. It doesn’t matter their age. I will always be their mom and they will always be my kids...and my responsibility.”
